

NICK PARISH - CV

I am a London based filmmaker and co-director of Milkwood Productions.

Over the past twenty years I have created content for a huge number of brands, either directly or through large agencies, such as Publicis, M&C Saatchi, Cheil, WundermanThompson and FCB Inferno. Past clients include Nike, Nivea, BBC, Tate, Beefeater, Peroni, BMW, HP, Mondelez, Amazon, Sony and Samsung.

Having founded Milkwood Productions 10 years ago, I consider myself a highly experienced interdisciplinary director, shooter and editor with an equal balance of technical skills, imaginative thinking, storytelling and a highly visual style.

I enjoy working across a breadth of media from commercials and branded content to documentary and music. I work closely with the high-level marketers and broadcasters to take on each challenge and bring it to life, through interpreting the brief, delivery and implementation of the finished film.

My independent films have been broadcast on network TV and selected for numerous film festivals including BFI London Film Festival, LA Short Film Festival and Cinequest. I have toured with OneDotZero to give talks on digital filmmaking and been invited to chair a discussion on experimental filmmaking at the Oberhausen Film festival in Germany.

I have recently directed 'Immortality', an eight part sci-fi mini-series for the new online platform BlackPills that runs through the Vice portal, alongside a line-up of directors, including Zoe Cassavetes, James Franco and Luc Besson.
